Fun activities to try at home

Science— Nutrition

There are lots different activities that your child can do at home to link into our unit on nutrition. Nutrients are things that humans and animals need to keep healthy. We can find nutrients in the foods that we eat.

You could try:

- Cook with your child and talk about the different ingredients. What food category are they in? What makes the meal you are preparing a balanced diet?
- Keep a food diary as a family. What types of foods are most popular? What effect is this having on your bodies? i.e. carbohydrates will give you a slow release of energy.
- When out and about, talk about the different animals you see. What food do they eat? What type of diet do they have?

Key vocabulary to use with your child:

carbohydrates, protein, sugar,
fats, vitamins, minerals, fibre, water,
omnivore, carnivore, herbivore

Geography—UK and British Isles

Here are some ideas of activities children may like to try at home to further develop their geography learning:

- Look at a map or google maps and find out where in the UK your friends and family live. If you have friends and family in different countries, can you extend your map to include them too?
- Can your child name the different countries that make up the U.K?
- You might like to visit a port with your family and talk about where the ships may be going and why.

Key vocabulary to discuss with your child at home:

continent, city, country, hamlet, town, village, county
